

JOE FLAHERTY'S
DOLPHINS

DARING

It is not the critic who counts. It is not the one who points out where the strong man stumbled, or where the doer of deeds could have done them better.
The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena.
Whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood.
The man who strives valiantly. Who fails and comes up short again and again.
A man who knows the great devotions, the great enthusiasms,
And spends himself in a worthy cause.
A hero who at his best knows the triumph of high achievement
And who, at his worst, if he fails, At least fails while

DARING GREATLY

So that his place will never be with those timid cowards
Who know neither victory nor defeat.
